

PADME AMIDALA

Episode II: Attack of the Clones
Deleted Naberrie Residence Family Gown

Padme Amidala

Kay_Dee of Endor Base

This gown is worn by Padme when she brings Anakin home to meet her family on Naboo. The scene was deleted from the theatrical release of the movie, but can be found on the DVD extras.

Required Items:

1. Fabric - The top and skirt are made of pastel aqua crinkled fabric.
2. The top is a long sleeved cropped turtleneck. The back is open, with long tabs wrapping from the sides meeting at the waist of the center back
3. Top Embellishments - The seams on the front of the top are embellished with a string of trochus shells (beads, or some other trim substitutes are acceptable). The bottom edge of the center front should have a decorative blue clip (A leaf-like shape with floral details and blue rhinestone is preferable - but not required). Ideally, the same decorative blue clips should also be placed at the back near the shoulder blades. The center back opening of the turtleneck collar should be finished with small decorative pearl buttons with an antique gold or brass metal edge. (They could also be custom fabric covered buttons).
4. Skirt - The floor length wrap around skirt flairs out from the knees to the hem. There is a small decorative button at the top of the wrap opening – identical to the buttons used on the back of the turtleneck.
5. Accessories - A triangular shaped matching blue headband (preferably with metallic 'rub n buff' finish). A decorative geometric pattern added to the headband is preferred - but not required. Shoes are dress pumps with a pointed closed toe (most likely sling backs) that are dyed to match or silver.

6. Hair – worn pulled back with long curls cascading down.
7. Optional Cloak – The hooded floor length cloak is made of pale ivory panne velvet. Ideally, there should be a blue burn-out dragonfly design on either side of the center front opening (however, this is not a required standard). The cloak is fastened with a pearly-beige rectangular clasp. The long sleeves extend to roughly 1.5-2 feet from the ground.